This Turabian packet will help students format a Turabian paper, including the bibliography and footnotes.

These handouts conform to Turabian 9th edition standards. However, professors may change their requirements for individual papers. One should consult with his or her professor for any special requirements.

Turabian Basics

Title Page (pgs. 388, 391-392 in the Turabian Manual)
On the title page for a class paper, center the title and bold it. About seven spaces down, type one’s name, the course name and number, and the date of submission. See the first example on page 1.

OR

On the title page for a dissertation, type the following information centered: Dallas Baptist University, Title (in bold,) A Dissertation Submitted to (Professor’s Name) in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree of Doctor of (Subject), Department (ex. Department of Philosophy), by (the student’s name), location (Dallas, TX), and the date. See the second example on page 1. This is the standard title page in the 9th edition of the Turabian Manual, and many professors still prefer this style. Students should consult with their professors for specific guidelines.

Margins (pg. 384)
Set margins to one inch on all sides of the page. In Microsoft Word, under “Page Layout,” click on “Margins;” set the measurements to “Normal.” This should set all margins at one inch. See special margins for dissertation in DBU’s supplemental manual.

Pagination (pgs. 385-386)
The 9th edition of the Turabian Manual allows each university to determine how to number the title page of documents; therefore, one should consult with his or her professor for pagination advice. Most professors, however, prefer that their students refrain from adding a page number to the title page of their assignments. If this is the case, one will need to start the pagination of his or her paper from 0. In Microsoft Word, double click on the header and check the “Different First Page” box under the “Design” tab. Then, go to the second page, double click on the header, and insert page numbers wherever the professor has requested or, if he or she has no preference, wherever one has decided to place them. After doing so, the number 2 should appear in the location that was selected. Now, right click on the page number, select “Format page numbers,” and put a 0 in the “Start at” box. Number 1 should now show on the second page, and the title page should have no page number at all. Ensure the page numbers are in Times New Roman and in 12-point font. The manual also advises that the page number can be placed either in the footer or header, depending on the professor’s preference. If the professor requests that the page numbers be found at the bottom of the page, simply follow the same directions above after double clicking the footer.

Spacing (pg. 385)
Double-space the body of the paper. Single-space footnotes, block quotes, and each entry on the bibliography page; however, a blank line is needed between each entry in the bibliography and in between each footnote. Leave an extra line between the word “Bibliography” and the first citation on the Bibliography page. In Microsoft Word, the button for line spacing is found under the “Home” menu, in the “Paragraph” section. Under “Line Spacing,” select “Double” and check the box for “Don’t add space between lines of the same style.”

Indents (pgs. 78, 155, 161-162, 361, 385)
Tab once before all paragraphs and footnote entries. For quotes five lines or longer, single-space and indent each line as a block quote with no quotation marks. See pages 3 and 5 of the sample paper available in physical form from the Writing Center.

Subheadings (pgs. 402-405)
Turabian utilizes bolded subheadings to transition and indicate different sections of the paper. These are generally centered and in 12-point font. Some professors prefer these headings to be in all capital letters with no bolding. However, it is also acceptable to create a unique typography if it is used with consistency and your professor agrees (pg. 391). Second and third-level subheads may also be used if necessary, but in a typical class paper, one level of subheads is usually sufficient. If the natural length and format of the paragraphs leaves a subheading dangling on the end of a page, it is preferable to insert an extra line to push that title and the accompanying information to the next page. See the UWC sample paper for examples.

Names and Titles (pgs. 150, 154)
Within the paper, the first reference to a researcher or author should include his or her entire name. In subsequent references, use only his or her last name.

Titles of longer works like books and journals should be italicized, while titles of articles and chapters should be in quotation marks.

Numbers (pgs. 331-341)
The general rule for Turabian is to spell out numbers one through one hundred in subjects that use numbers occasionally, such as the social sciences. Spell out whole numbers followed by hundred, thousand, etc. In all other situations, use Arabic numerals.

Formatting Citations

Styles for Citing Sources in a Turabian Paper (pgs. 35-36, 142-143)
In Turabian style, there are two citation options. The first uses footnotes or endnotes, and the other uses parenthetical references. The instructor will usually indicate which type of documentation to use. If the professor does not have a preference, the student may decide which method to use, and then use only that method throughout the paper. Since majority of professors desire footnotes or endnotes, this packet addresses this style for the sake of simplicity. If students are instructed to use parenthetical citations or if they choose to use them, the Writing Center has a separate handout that addresses this alternative.

Why Cite?
If someone else’s ideas or words are used to help create ideas and reach conclusions while writing, credit must be given to the author of the source; otherwise, it is plagiarism. Footnotes and endnotes are used to show where credit is due.

Endnotes (pgs. 162)
Endnotes are formatted like footnotes with a few exceptions. Rather than placing endnotes at the bottom of each page, students must place them on a separate page at the end of the paper before the bibliography page. The page is titled “Notes.” The format of endnotes follows the same pattern as footnotes, so simply refer to the entries labeled “Footnote” when creating notes. Some professors want footnotes for Turabian papers, while others allow any of the citation formats. If a student is unsure of which format to use, he or she should consult with his or her professor.

Basic Format of Footnotes (pgs. 157, 164)
Footnotes should be inserted at the bottom of the page. In Microsoft Word, go to the “References” tab, then click the “Insert Footnote” button. Word should automatically insert a line that separates the footnote from the text and a number. Tab the number over once to indent the footnote.

➢ The first time a source is used, all the publication information should be listed within the footnote. Each new source used within the paper needs a full-length footnote that nearly parallels the bibliography entry.
➢ For all subsequent references to this source, omit publication information and include the author’s last name, a comma, and the page number: 3Jones, 23.
➢ If two or more works from the same author are used in the paper, also include a shortened version of the title: 3Jones, Truth, 23.
➢ If two consecutive references are from the same source, use the term “Ibid.” This stands for “in the same place” (pg. 167). See the following examples:

1Firstname Lastname, The Writing Center Guide to Turabian Format: How to Write and Cite Properly (Dallas: Publishing Company, 2004), 73.

2Ibid., 17.

3Somebody Wroteabook, Another Book Title: Creativity in Naming (New York: Spaghetti Sauce Publishers, 1997), 27.

4Lastname, 12.

5Ibid.

NOTE: When using footnotes or endnotes, most titles are capitalized using headline style. Capitalize the first word and all other words except unimportant prepositions, articles, and conjunctions. For most foreign language titles, sentence-style capitalization should be used for titles of works. Capitalize the first word and all proper nouns (pg. 154).

Bibliography (pg. 411)
If using footnotes, include a bibliography at the end of the paper. This page is most often titled “Bibliography;” however, some types of bibliography will have different titles, such as “Sources Consulted” (pg. 155). This includes an alphabetized list of all the sources used during the writing of the paper. Leave two spaces between the title and the first entry, then single-space subsequent entries, leaving a blank line between each entry. Left align the first line of each entry; if an entry is two lines or longer, each subsequent line should be indented. This is called a hanging indent. See the following example.

Lastname, Firstname. The Writing Center Guide to Turabian Format: How to Write and Cite Properly.

To format hanging indents in Microsoft Word, highlight the text, right click on it, and select “Paragraph.” Under the “Indents and Spacing” section, select “Special: Hanging.”

Differences Between the Format of Footnotes and Bibliography Entries
Note these few differences in citation formats:
➢ Author Name: Footnotes format the author’s name as first name last name, whereas bibliography entries format the author’s name as last name, first name.

➢ Punctuation: Footnotes use commas and parentheses to separate elements in the entry, whereas bibliography entries use periods.

➢ Ordering: Footnotes are numbered and ordered according to where the information is introduced in the text, whereas bibliography entries are always alphabetized and not numbered.
Printed Sources

The following are examples of citations for research from printed sources (books, magazines, newspapers, and other non-electronic sources). If online versions of printed sources have been consulted, refer to the “Internet Sources” section.

Each entry should include all of the following information that is available about the source (pg. 141):
➢ Author’s name
➢ Book title
➢ Article or chapter title
➢ Page numbers for articles/chapters
➢ Journal or magazine title
➢ Volume, issue, edition, etc.
➢ Place of publication
➢ Publishing company
➢ Copyright date
➢ Editor, translator, etc.

Internet Sources

For the most part, the same important information for a printed source must be recorded for electronically accessed sources. However, there are a few extra things that are very important to include. For example, because the Internet is constantly changing, it is essential to record the date the information was accessed.

When citing a document from the World Wide Web, include as much of the following information as possible. Some sources will not provide all of the information, so it is acceptable to omit missing details. If the material being cited does not have an author, for example, simply begin with the title of the document.

Author's name
Title of document in quotation marks
Title of website from which the document was retrieved
Any other pertinent data about the source or contributors (journal title, volume, issue, editor, etc.)
URL

General Website Format (pg. 194)

Using the Bible as a Source

When using most biblical commentaries, follow the example for “A Multivolume Work.”

When referring to whole chapters or books, (pgs. 351-354)
Spell the complete name. Books and versions of the Bible are not underlined, italicized, or in quotations.

Ex: This passage comes from the New American Standard Bible.

Ex: The book of Hebrews claims no specific author.

Ex: Proverbs 31 includes some of the most beautiful chapters in the Bible.

When citing by verse,

Use abbreviations both in text and in notes.

List the chapter and verse separated by a colon (pg. 351). Always be consistent. Spell out the version the first time, and then use abbreviations in all subsequent references.

If the reference is given in the sentence, no footnote is necessary unless the version needs to be specified.

Ex: 1Gen. 1:1 (New American Standard Version)
2Rev. 1.1 (NASB)
Ex. Genesis 1:1 says, “In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.”

Punctuation (pgs. 203-204, 352)
Commas are used to indicate that only the listed numbers are being cited. A hyphen is used to indicate inclusive numbers.

Ex: Col. 3:16, 23 (only verses 16 and 23 are being cited)
Col. 3:16-23 (every verse from 16 to 23 is being cited)
Bibliography List and Notes (pg. 204)

Biblical citations omit all facts of publication, including place (city), publishing agency, and date.

- Footnote
  62 Cor. 5:13 (King James Version).

- Bibliography
  Usually the Bible is not included on the bibliography page, but it is acceptable to add it.

After spelling out the version once, abbreviate it in all subsequent footnotes.

Citing a Study Bible (pg. 178)

If citing the notes from a study Bible, one should cite it like an ordinary book with an editor as author.
